

What is Diploma Mill

A “diploma mill” is a company that offers “certification/diplomas” for a flat fee in a short amount of time with little or no course work. Diplomas/Certificates awarded through diploma mills are not legitimate

Signs of a Diploma Mill

No Studies, No Exams, No Interaction

If you’re getting a certification/diploma without doing any work, chances are you’re dealing with a diploma mill. Legitimate schools, colleges, or universities – including online schools – require substantial course work and interaction with professors.

No Waiting

Though there are schools that offer accelerated certifications/diplomas in-person or online, earning certifications/diplomas still takes some time. If an ad promises that you can earn certifications/diplomas in a few days, or week, it’s probably a diploma mill.

Pushy Advertising Tactics

Some diploma mills push themselves through aggressive sales tactics. Legitimate institutions, including distance learning programs, will not advertise through spam or pop-ups. They will not use high-pressure telemarketing calls, either.

Royal Learning Institute do not accept any diplomas/degrees provided by diploma mills from students as a document for entrance requirement to get admission into the programs.

If the school finds out the student has graduated from such diploma mills, he/she will be terminated from the enrollment and this information will be shared with state, federal agencies.
